CLAN EWING GOES COAST TO COAST IN 2015

Clan Ewing will achieve another major milestone in 2015 by appearing at the Scottish Highland and Games at Pleasanton, California on September 5th and 6th. The Alameda County Fairgrounds, about 20 miles south of San Francisco, is the site of the Games, which is celebrating its 150th year. It is the largest and longest continuously-running Scottish festival in the US, and in some years, the largest in the world. See the article by Larry E. Ewing on page 3 for more details.

DEADLINE FOR NOVEMBER JOURNAL

As this summer races by, Denise and I are already focusing our attention on the November Journal. If you have articles, photos, or any other historical or genealogical contribution to share, please email or send it to us no later than September 15th, so that we can meet our publishing deadline.

SECOND INSTALLMENT – AMY HUNTER EWING (PATTERSON) ARTICLE

If many of you enjoyed part one of Bruce Frobes' article about his ancestor, Amy Hunter Ewing (Patterson) as much as I did, I think you will be just as interested in part two coming in the November Journal. I must admit, Bruce had me hooked at the mention of Benjamin Franklin! Of course, it didn't hurt that Amy and her husband, Robert, also "hobnobbed" with the likes of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, and other prominent early Americans.

Comments from the Board Chair . . .

This year continues to be busy as we ease forward with both ongoing and meaningful genealogical research and the growth and nurturing of the newly re-constituted Clan Ewing.

After our inaugural Clan Ewing tent at the Loch Norman Games in North Carolina, we are supporting another opportunity for the Scottish community to welcome our clan into the pantheon. Larry E. Ewing will captain a Clan Ewing tent at Pleasanton, CA, this September.

Next year's biennial EFA Gathering will support yet another Clan Tent at the Saline Celtic Festival near Ann Arbor, MI. It is my greatest hope that every Ewing who identifies with the new clan makes a trip to one of these upcoming events.

Further work has been forthcoming on Clan Ewen of Otter. In upcoming issues of the Journal, we'll look forward to some additional information pointing us to the old clan on Loch Fyne.

Some energetic new members have shared their family lineages with our Genealogist, Karen Avery. These will, likewise, appear in future versions of the Journal.

Lastly, take a look at the Clan Ewing Facebook page. You'll meet some of our Ewing kin in Scotland and England. To all I say – Audaciter!

Chancellor's Message

I have become acquainted with my Ewing cousins through a variety of media, including the Internet. Most often the Web meetings come about because of the other person's inquiry about Ewing genealogy, and occasionally the two of us discover that we share common ancestors.

Another way of becoming acquainted is when close relatives pop up unexpectedly to ask questions about their ancestry. I am glad to respond to their questions, hopeful that I also will learn something new. In the process, I introduce my new-found cousin to the Ewing Family Association and all it has to offer. One such chance meeting occurred this summer, when Rebecca Ewing Maxey emailed me and said, "Let's have lunch." We did.

Arriving with my cousin was her husband, Mark, and their two mid-teen boys, J.D. and Scott. We gathered at one of Grand Haven's favorite restaurants, set on the Lake Michigan shoreline, where each of us enjoyed blue Lake Michigan in front of us and the wooded dunes behind us.

Becki recalled that she and I previously had met in Grand Haven, perhaps 18 or 20 years ago. I didn't remember that occasion, so for me this was like an inaugural meeting that allowed us to become acquainted personally and to share family memories. Her father, David Ewing, was my first cousin. I had a collection of photographs of him and a few of his family, as well as a quantity of ephemeral items that were pertinent to her grandfather, my uncle Walkley Ewing. Several of the candid snapshots were new to her. I offered to email her copies of the photos and letters she wanted. Becki and I vowed to keep up our communication and to continue sharing information. She concluded her thank-you note by writing, "I will be much better educated on Ewing history when you see me next!"

As a way of learning more about her Ewing ancestors, Becki has agreed to join the Ewing Family Association. I hope that means she will return to Michigan next summer and be part of our Gathering in Saline on July 8 and 9. Then you could meet her, too.
